Internal Dispute Resolution Process

All steps must be completed at least once by the offended party before any request for a Board of Review will be entertained.

The goal of the Dispute Resolution Process (“DRP”), founded on the scriptural principles in Matthew 18:15-20, is to promote cohesion and positive productivity amongst all members of the assembly. The intent is that the process must be fully completed by the claimant preceding any request for a Board of Review.

1. When a conflict is suspected, the original (‘offended’) party is to immediately, privately, draw the attention of the other member (‘the offending party’) to the matter in a way that facilitates peace and honorable conversation between the two.

2. If the offending member rejects correction and continues the offending behavior after a clear discussion is had between the two, the member who still feels there is conflict is to privately select an unbiased third party member of the assembly to mediate a second attempt at peaceful resolution by conversation giving equal time to both sides in the matter. Mediating member shall complete a Dispute Resolution Incident Investigation Summary and Recommendation Form to be submitted privately to the Recording Secretary (after review by the Moderator-Foreman if action is recommended).

3. If this second attempt also fails to amicably resolve the problem behavior, the original party is to locate two additional unbiased mediating members for a third, group discussion with the offending member wherein each party is given equal time to state their position and provide proofs. Each mediating member shall complete a separate Dispute Resolution Incident Investigation Summary and Recommendation Form to be submitted privately to the Recording Secretary (after review by the Moderator-Foreman if action is recommended).

Bylaws, Rules and Procedures

Each conversation regarding the continued offending behavior is to be kept private for the protection of the morale and integrity of the membership, the cohesive continuation of the Assembly and the protection of the reputation(s) of all involved. At no time is this dispute resolution process (“DRP”) nor any part of it to be discussed with non-participants, the County or State membership or the public.

The burden is on the originally offended party to document each step of their compliance with this DRP prior to approaching the Grand Jury Commissioner to request a Board of Review be impaneled on the matter. No punitive actions shall be taken against any oath sworn member of the Ohio State Jural Assembly without at least three independently verifiable pieces of evidence against that member, including at least one DRP having been documented.

Refusal/Failure of the offended party to comply with a full DRP shall result in subsequent complaints about behavior of the offender to be construed as bearing false witness and engaging in inflammatory rhetoric and will be responded to with the maximum penalty within our membership: immediate one-year censorship within the Assembly.

Censorship means the member has no right to speak or submit remarks in writing, nor vote in regular, special, or emergency meetings. No equal voiced member of this assembly has the right to request or effect the removal of another lawfully oath-sworn man or woman from this group of sovereigns.

Boards of Review:

A “Board of Review” is understood to mean an odd number of anonymous jurists empaneled in the same manner as, but in a number less than, that of a petit jury (twelve men and women plus three alternates).

1. The composition of a Board of Review gathered for (“OSJA”) purposes need not be comprised solely of Ohio jurists. All members and alternates of the pool of jurists for said BoR shall have been randomly selected by, interviewed and sworn in by the Grand Jury Commissioner as with any other jury (or the Chief Justice if the review involves the GJC), utilizing the JCO minus language committing to Assembly membership. If the claimant believes Ohio jurists may have inherent biases in the controversy, BoR members (“peer jurists”) shall be sourced from outside OSJA, possibly including other agreeable, like-minded states assemblies, but without restriction, as OSJA becomes aware and in cooperative agreement with same.

The Ohio State Jural Assembly

2. The Grand Jury Commissioner shall preside as the consultant in equity and lawfulness to all members of Boards of Review, similar to the manner in which he/she serves every other variation and composition of 'a jury' for Ohio under common law.
3. The number to comprise the BoR jury pool shall be no less than five, no more than eleven.
4. The jury pool members shall confidentially self-determine which THREE will anonymously serve as investigative evaluating jurists for each BoR, thus assuring the anonymity of the BoR jurists.
5. The Moderator-Foreman shall have no special authority with regard to Boards of Review, but shall serve as the confidentiality firewall BoR liaison to funnel evidences TO the anonymous jurists and be the designated recipient of confidential inquiries for additional information/evidence FROM the BoR.
6. If the Moderator-Foreman is a party to the matter being investigated by the BoR, one of the other BoR jury pool members ('alternates') shall act as the known point of contact between the BoR jurists and those providing evidence, testimony and the like.
7. When sourcing out-of-state jurists, preference shall be shown to the North Carolina (Buncombe County) CoS and the leadership at the America First Republic for sourcing potential jurists from other similarly structured assemblies as Ohio.
8. Boards of Review, like any other type of jury, serve only the law/God's Law/'common law' and never any foreign intervenor, de facto code, statute nor other manmade court system;
9. The end goal of any grand jury deliberation is to have exhaustively and fearlessly examined the matter from every possible angle with a final recommendation designed to achieve the highest level of equity, elimination of controversy and restoration of honor to all.

5. The Moderator-Foreman shall have no special authority with regard to Boards of Review, but shall serve as the confidentiality firewall BoR liaison to funnel evidences TO the anonymous jurists and be the designated recipient of confidential inquiries for additional information/evidence FROM the BoR.
6. If the Moderator-Foreman is a party to the matter being investigated by the BoR, one of the other BoR jury pool members (‘alternates’) shall act as the known point of contact between the BoR jurists and those providing evidence, testimony and the like.
7. When sourcing out-of-state jurists, preference shall be shown to the North Carolina (Buncombe County) CoS and the leadership at the America First Republic for sourcing potential jurists from other similarly structured assemblies as Ohio.
8. Boards of Review, like any other type of jury, serve only the law/God’s Law/‘common law’ and never any foreign intervenor, de facto code, statute nor other manmade court system;

9. The end goal of any grand jury deliberation is to have exhaustively and fearlessly examined the matter from every possible angle with a final recommendation designed to achieve the highest level of equity, elimination of controversy and restoration of honor to all.

ADDENDUM ELEVEN:

By affirmative majority vote of the general Assembly on February 20, 2025, the Ohio State Covenant Bylaws shall be amended to remove language pertaining to County Committee Settlement (CoS) Administrative Oversight authority by the state.

ADDENDUM TWELVE:

By affirmative majority vote of the general Assembly on February 20, 2025, the Ohio State Covenant Bylaws shall be amended to correct the clerical error on page 2, item 9 under Requirements for Membership, where the jural covenant of office is not noted as a necessary autographed document along with the Declaration of Independence and the Declaration of Unalienable Rights.

ADDENDUM THIRTEEN:

By affirmative majority vote of the general Assembly on March 6, 2025, the Ohio State Covenant Bylaws shall be amended to include the section “Internal Dispute Resolution Process” before the Board of Review section, to read as follows:

All steps must be completed at least once by the offended party before any request for a Board of Review will be entertained.

The goal of the Dispute Resolution Process (“DRP”), founded on the scriptural principles in Matthew 18:15-20, is to promote cohesion and positive productivity amongst all members of the assembly. The intent is that the process must be fully completed by the claimant preceding any request for a Board of Review.

4. When a conflict is suspected, the original ('offended') party is to immediately, privately, draw the attention of the other member ('the offending party') to the matter in a way that facilitates peace and honorable conversation between the two.

5. If the offending member rejects correction and continues the offending behavior after a clear discussion is had between the two, the member who still feels there is conflict is to privately select an unbiased third party member of the assembly to mediate a second attempt at peaceful resolution by conversation giving equal time to both sides in the matter. Mediating member shall complete a Dispute Resolution Incident Investigation Summary and Recommendation Form to be submitted privately to the Recording Secretary (after review by the Moderator-Foreman if action is recommended).

6. If this second attempt also fails to amicably resolve the problem behavior, the original party is to locate two additional unbiased mediating members for a third, group discussion with the offending member wherein each party is given equal time to state their position and provide proofs. Each mediating member shall complete a separate Dispute Resolution Incident Investigation Summary and Recommendation Form to be submitted privately to the Recording Secretary (after review by the Moderator-Foreman if action is recommended).

Each conversation regarding the continued offending behavior is to be kept private for the protection of the morale and integrity of the membership, the cohesive continuation of the Assembly and the protection of the reputation(s) of all involved. At no time is this dispute resolution process ("DRP") nor any part of it to be discussed with non-participants, the County or State membership or the public.

The burden is on the originally offended party to document each step of their compliance with this DRP prior to approaching the Grand Jury Commissioner to request a Board of Review be impaneled on the matter. No punitive actions shall be taken against any oath sworn member of the Ohio State Jural Assembly without at least three independently verifiable pieces of evidence against that member, including at least one DRP having been documented.

Refusal/Failure of the offended party to comply with a full DRP shall result in subsequent complaints about behavior of the offender to be construed as bearing false witness and engaging in inflammatory rhetoric and will be responded to with the maximum penalty within our membership: immediate one-year censorship within the Assembly.

Censorship means the member has no right to speak or submit remarks in writing, nor vote in regular, special, or emergency meetings. No equal voiced member of this assembly has the right to request or effect the removal of another lawfully oath-sworn man or woman from this group of sovereigns.
